Move away from spread sheets to collaborate better and improve processes

SmartLattice Designed to get your application up and running fast.

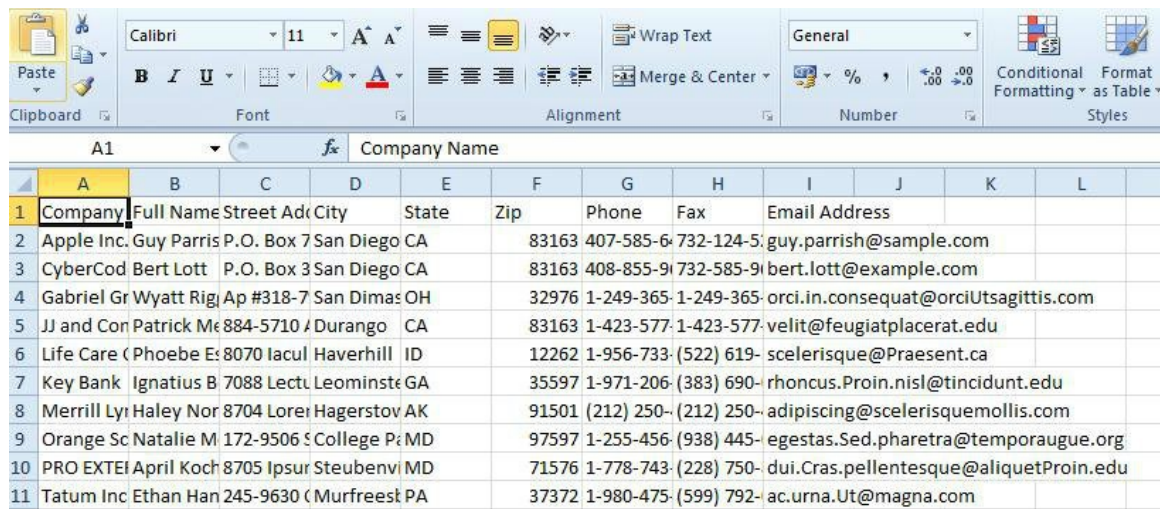

Let's say you've been using spreadsheets for passing important list information back and forth. The problems are pretty clear.

If you need someone to act on that information or track, which does what and when, your processes can be pretty complex. That can lead to mistakes or information getting out of sync.

By turning that information in your spreadsheet into a web application, you can collaborate better while also improving your information management processes.

Here's how...

Copy from your spreadsheet

Let's say you've got a spreadsheet for managing list based information.

In this example, it's customers along with their Email, demographic information.

First, copy the data into your computer's clipboard.
